DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Beeson, Jr. et al., US Patent Number 5,396,543 (hereinafter Beeson).

Regarding claim 1, Beeson discloses a method for controlling switching-oriented actions in a mobile radio telephone system having at least one radio-oriented sub-system with base station controllers and base stations for radio connections from and to mobile stations of mobile subscribers, having a switching-oriented sub-system with subscriber data bases and mobile switching centers for line-switched connections and having an operation and maintenance sub-system, the operation and maintenance sub-system having at least one operation and maintenance center for administration and control of devices provided in the radio-oriented sub-system and in the switching-oriented sub-system, comprising the steps of: establishing respective mobile radio telephone-specific data for defining conditions for a subscriber-contended control of actions in a mobile switching center, the data being established subscriber-individually for at least one mobile subscriber via the operation and maintenance sub-system and respectively evaluating in the mobile switching center, given one of an incoming call, an outgoing call or a message transmission at least one of call-related data and subscriber specific data with respect to the conditions and, given a satisfied condition, controlling at least one action subscriber-dependent [fig. 2; col. 4: line 66 – col. 5: line 25; col. 11: line 26 – col. 12: line 31].

Regarding claim 2, Beeson discloses the conditions for the subscriber-dependent control of the actions are respectively defined by one of a single, call-related/subscriber-specific datum and an operation of a plurality of call-related/subscriber-specific data [col. 14: lines 59-63].

Regarding claim 3, it is inherent that the operation of the call-related/subscriber-specific data ensues via at least one of a logical AND operation and a logical OR operation.

Regarding claim 4, Beeson discloses given a plurality of satisfied conditions different actions are controlled subscriber-dependent [col. 4: line 66 – col. 5: line 25; col. 11: line 26 – col. 12: line 31].

Regarding claim 5, Beeson discloses given parallel existence of a plurality of satisfied conditions, the actions are provided with priority numbers with which is defined a sequence of actions to be controlled [col. 11: line 57 – col. 12: line 14].

Regarding claim 6, Beeson discloses given parallel existence of a plurality of satisfied conditions, blocking information is used to exclude a respective action of said actions from the control by another action of said actions [col. 4: lines 1-19].

Regarding claim 7, Beeson discloses the blocking information is entered into a table that is located in one of the mobile switching center and a subscriber data base of the mobile switching center [col. 4: lines 1-19].

Regarding claim 8, Beeson discloses one of a type of call or type of message transmission is evaluated as call-related data [col. 11: lines 10-20]

Regarding claim 9, Beeson discloses one of an international mobile subscriber identifier, a service class mark for triggering services of an intelligent network, a mobile subscriber category or supplementary services usable by the mobile subscriber is evaluated as subscriber-specific data [col. 9: lines 26-30].

Regarding claim 10, Beeson discloses given an outgoing call, a subscriber telephone number selected by the mobile subscriber or a numerical range of the selected subscriber telephone number is evaluated and, wherein the location telephone number or a numerical range of the location telephone number assigned in the mobile radio telephone system, respectively, is evaluated given the incoming call [col. 11: lines 10-20; col. 12: lines 21-25].

Regarding claim 11, Beeson discloses given an incoming call with call forwarding to a destination telephone number, the destination telephone number or a numerical range of the destination telephone number is evaluated [col. 19: lines 26-33].

Regarding claim 12, Beeson discloses one of blocking of a call, suppression of a call forwarding, and blocking of a message transmission is controlled subscriber-dependent as an action [col. 14: lines 59-63].

Regarding claim 13, Beeson discloses one of clear-down of a call and routing of a call to an announcement device are controlled subscriber-dependent as actions [col. 16: lines 3-37].

Regarding claim 14, Beeson discloses one of routing of a call connection to a specific destination and acquisition of call charges in a specific charge zone are controlled subscriber-dependent as actions [col. 12: lines 2-7].

Regarding claim 15, Beeson discloses routing of a call connection to a service control point of an intelligent network is controlled subscriber-dependent as an action and a service class mark is thereby set preceding a destination telephone number [col. 4: line 66 – col. 5: line 25; col. 11: line 26 – col. 12: line 31].

Regarding claim 16, Beeson discloses a telephone number modification by insertion of subscriber-individual information into one of a selected telephone number given an outgoing call, a location telephone number given an incoming call or a destination telephone number given an incoming call with call forwarding is controlled subscriber-dependent as an action [col. 22: lines 52-67].

Regarding claim 17, Beeson discloses an eavesdropping of a call connection or an authorization or, respectively, suppression of services/performance features are controlled subscriber-dependent as actions [col. 22: lines 38-51].

Regarding claim 18, it is inherent to a convert an abbreviated code selected by the subscriber into a telephone number is controlled subscriber-dependent as an action.

Regarding claim 19, Beeson discloses a mobile radio telephone system for controlling switching-oriented actions comprising: at least one radio-oriented sub-system that has base station controllers and base stations for radio connections from and to mobile stations of mobile subscribers; a switching-oriented sub-system that has subscriber data bases and mobile switching centers for line-switched connections; an operation and maintenance sub-system having at least one operation and maintenance center for administration and control of devices provided in the radio-oriented sub-system and in the switching-oriented sub-system; mobile radio telephone-specific data defining conditions for a subscriber-dependent control of the actions, the mobile radio telephone specific data being subscriber-individually established for at least one mobile subscriber in the mobile switching center via the operation and maintenance sub-system and the mobile switching center having a device that, given an incoming call or an outgoing call or given a message transmission, respectively evaluates at least one of call-related data and subscriber-specific data with reference to the conditions and, given a satisfied condition, controls at least one action subscriber-dependent [fig. 2; col. 4: line 66 – col. 5: line 25; col. 11: line 26 – col. 12: line 31].

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Khan et al., US Patent Number 5,926,760, discloses a system for providing features for a land-line supported private base station operable in a cellular system.

Lu et al., US Patent Number 5,953, 651, discloses a cellular adjunct to a public wired network.
